STAND FIRM FOR EQUITY.

That What Farmer Says Farmers Should do.

New Organization Not Limiting
Acreage and Misrepresents
Equity Principles.

To the Equity tobacco growers of Ohio county. I take this method of calling your attention to the workings of the new tobacco organization known as the Green River Tobacco Growers Association, or Branch of American tobacco Company.

This part of the county has been canvassed in the last few days by representatives of this association and as once the report goes out that I had signed their pledge, when it is well known that I had pledged my tobacco to the Equity committee of Ohio County. Now I consider this report as a reflection on my integrity and resent it as such. But I am not alone in this experience as I find that such reports have been started on a number of men in different communities who were known to be staunch Equity men. It seems to be the policy of this organization to gain its ends regardless of the means used. I regret the necessity of any criticism that can be construed as a fight on the new organization but I would be false to myself, to the county Union and especially to the Buford magisterial district if I did otherwise under the circumstances. My policy has been to treat the members of this new organization with all courtesy, recognizing the fact that they had a right to decide this question for themselves and believing that we might work along in perfect harmony and cooperation. But the means used to secure names to their pledges in this part of the county as well as other things said and done by Mr. Berry and other advocates of the organization, compels me to review the history of this organization from its beginnings.

In the first place when the Green River District A. S. of E. was called together to consider the constitution and bylaws of this association, it was clearly understood, to be a delegated convention, but when it met the chairman ruled that it was a mass meeting and that all Equity men were entitled to a seat.

This ruling gave the friends of the new association a decided advantage over those who stood firm for the A. S. of E., and furthermore the constitution was adopted by this meeting with an amendment that provided that in one year from that date there should be a vote taken as to whether or not this organization should become a part of the A. S. of E. Notwithstanding this, the next day this amendment was repudiated by the independents, assisted by some who called themselves Equity men.

Now let us look at their position on the acreage question. Mr. Berry and nearly every one else has always favored the 10,000-hill-to-the-hand limit, and the impression has been made that the organization would stand for it. But when their pledges come out we find that they are as silent as the grave on this important question. And further it is reported that Mr. Berry acknowledged the other day at Calhoun that they were not limiting the acreage this year and that Mr. — agent of the American Tobacco Co. said to Mr. Ewing that it was not necessary. Now is it possible that Mr. Berry is running this organization at the dictation of the American Tobacco Co.?

Now I will ask the Equity tobacco growers of this county to remember the action of our county union as regards this new association. Remember that Ohio County has been the banner county in the A. S. of E. and remember that on your action depends the welfare of the A. S. of E. Remember these things, and decide whether you will pledge your tobacco to this new organization and build up Owensboro at the expense of your home town or whether you will pledge to a committee of your own selection in your own county and thereby attend your own business and build up your town and endorse the A. S. of E. that for four years has fought the farmers battle for better conditions and better prices. Yours for Equity.

T. F. TANNER.

Judge Taylor Attending Good Roads Convention.

Judge W. B. Taylor left yesterday for Eminence, Ky., where he will attend the first state Good Roads Convention.

The State good roads convention has been called by Gov. Willson and will be held under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics. In a communication received from M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture the information is conveyed that demonstration will be made at the convention of all modern road building machinery.

Prominent speakers both from the United States Government at Washington from the State College at Lexington and from Louisville will be present. It is also proposed to make a practical demonstration of the relative value of the different materials available in Kentucky.

It is the purpose of the convention to form a permanent organization that shall have in view the combination of the good roads interests of the State, to work for better roads in Kentucky both by securing favorable legislation and by the dissemination of knowledge of the proper manner of building good roads.

M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture concludes: "This will afford an unusual opportunity to secure information of how to get good roads, and Judge Taylor should be congratulated on availing himself of the opportunity."

Since the above was put in type we learned that Road and Bridge Com. G. A. Ralph went with Judge Taylor.

LAST SUNDAY'S ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

Smoked Glass Much in Evidence
With Which Citizens View Phenomenon.

For more than three hours last Sunday morning Old Sol was in partial eclipse and his face was almost obscured when the eclipse was at its height. The eclipse was visible through all of North America south of latitude 60 South America North of the Equator, parts of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, Southwestern Europe and West Africa.

The fact that the moon is now almost at its greatest distance from the earth caused it to appear directly in front of the sun, though it did not conceal it. Across Mexico the Gulf, and Florida the eclipse was nearly total the area where a central observation could be made being about 300 miles wide.

The eclipse began at 8:30 a. m. and reached its greatest degree at 10:36 o'clock. The eclipse ended at 12:13 p. m. When the eclipse was at its height about three-fourths of the face of the sun was covered and the greater part of the United States passed into semiobscurity.

The eclipse began at the right edge of the sun and gradually covered the lower part of the disc. At its height the moon transformed the sun into a crescent of a width about a third of the diameter of the sun.

Smoked glass was employed by our citizens, by the aid of which a splendid view of the wonderful phenomenon was obtained. It is estimated that this will not again occur for probably 100 years.

DR. CHAMPION FOUND GUILTY

First Conviction For Night Riding In Kentucky.

Prominent Physician Given Year In Prison by Jury from Another County.

Benton, Ky., June 27.—After ten hours consideration, the Paducah jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Dr. E. Champion from "between the rivers," charged with being a leader in the raid on Birmingham and fixed his punishment at one year in the State penitentiary.

Six of the jury stood for a sentence of fifteen years four for a sentence ranging from five to ten years, while two held out for an acquittal until the compromise this morning making the first conviction in the State for night riding.

After arguments were closed Friday afternoon the jury took the case at 4 o'clock and remaining together until 10:30 o'clock. Saturday deliberations were begun at 6:30 o'clock and not until 10:30 o'clock was a verdict agreed upon.

Immediately Attorney Jack E. Fisher, for the defense filed a motion for a new trial and this afternoon went to Paducah to prepare reasons with Attorneys Wheeler, Huges and Berry for a new trial. Dr. Champion did not display a trace of nervousness when the verdict was read and he went to jail calmly as bail is not permitted.

Dr. Champion the alleged captain of the Lyon county night riders, is 45 years old and he has resided in Lyon county, near Eddyville for fifteen years and has accumulated a fortune. He is a man of splendid physique and has a wife and four children. His son Courtney was indicted by the grand jury for alleged participation in the same raid.

The defense in the trial rested on the alibi that Dr. Champion was thrown from a horse and was physically unable to attend to his practice. However he said he was at the home of Tom Duncan with a sick child until 2 o'clock in the morning on the night of the raid. The defense used forty witnesses to corroborate his story while the Commonwealth introduced twenty-four witnesses, ten of whom swore they recognized Dr. Champion by his voice and general appearance.

The trial was a bitter legal fight and the defense spurred on by an acquittal and a hung jury made a strong fight for an acquittal of Dr. Champion. Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Lovett made a fearless fight and much credit for the first conviction in the State for night riding falls to him. Charles K. Wheeler for the defense and Attorney Lovett made masterful speeches to the McCracken county jury.

In justice to the tobacco growers of West Kentucky it should be stated the raid of which Dr. Champion was convicted as being a member of, was for the purpose of running off the negroes at Birmingham and had no connection whatever with the tobacco business.

Young Smiley Suicides.

Esq. Ben S. Chamberlin was called last Sunday morning to Maxwell to hold an inquest over the remains of W. P. Smiley. He empaneled a jury who after hearing the evidence returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to death at his own hands. The facts as gathered from the witnesses are that young Smiley who was living with Mrs. Tucker, had been out to some entertainment Saturday night and on returning home stopped at the gate to talk for a time with a friend who accompanied him while so engaged he drew his revolver and shot himself through the heart, death resulting instantly. No cause for the rash act was learned.

ANOTHER REPORT.

"You will be sorry for not talking to me." With these words spoken to a young woman, Ernest Smiley turned from the porch of a country home near Maxwell, where a party was being given, walked a few feet in the yard and pulling a revolver from his pocket sent a bullet through his heart. His death was instantaneous.

The report of the pistol and the scream of the young woman on the porch startled the guests who were enjoying themselves in the parlor of the home. The guests rushed into the yard, and when the young woman saw the prostrate form of the young man on the ground and his companion who had swooned on the porch many of them fainted.

The greatest of excitement prevailed for some time.

It is said that young Smiley and the girl left the others at the party at the home of Mrs. Lillie Tucker and went out on the porch. The young woman said that Smiley, with the remark: "You will be sorry for not talking to me," walked into the yard and shot himself. It is understood that he was jealous of the attention paid to another man by the girl.

Smiley was twenty-two years of age and the son of highly respected people of the Maxwell neighborhood.

A Pleasant Outing.

A party of young people from Centertown Ky., started Monday, June 22 and for a trip to the Mammoth Cave, and returned Friday 26th.

The following composed the party, Judge and Mrs. U. S. Faught, Misses Margaret Baker, Mary Emma Baker, Alta McMillen, and Mr. H. H. Lewis, of Centertown and Misses Lela McGary and Rosa Lou Ditta, Hardingsburg. All report a very pleasant trip and say if they go again they want to drive through by land.

NATIONAL UNION WILL MEET AT MILWAUKEE

Board of Directors Fixes October
The 6 For Convention.

At a meeting of the National Board of Directors held in Indianapolis Tuesday it was decided to call a special meeting of the National Union to meet in the City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin Tuesday Oct. 6, 1908. The call states the object to be the bringing about harmony, to place the Society on a better financial footing and to make better arrangement for the official organ. It also suggests that the meeting be resolved into the regular session, in order to prevent another meeting in December, as the Constitution fixes the regular annual meeting for that time.

Representatives from Wisconsin have assured the board that the delegates will be well entertained in Milwaukee.

Disastrous Fire.

Cromwell was visited by another disastrous fire Monday night about 10:30 o'clock. The fire originated in the store of T. C. Stratton & Son and in spite of heroic efforts it was soon reduced to ashes entailing a loss of about $5,000 on stock and building, with only $2,500 insurance on stock and $500 on building.

The post-office kept by C. Wade Stratton in the same building was almost entirely destroyed, nothing being saved except the cash and money order books. The stamps which were in the safe, were melted and so badly cemented that they are of no value but it is said the Government will exchange new for the mutilated stamps and also bear the loss on the stamped envelopes and such other stationary as was kept in the customary and a reasonable safe place. A barber outfit in the Stratton building, owned by Charles H. Rogers valued at $100 was burned. Mr. J. W. Kahn's damage to building and stock was from $400 to $600, covered by insurance. T. C. Pirkle & Son's damage to building and stock from $250 to $300 covered by insurance. Cooper Bros. damage to building and stock about $100 covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. If it had not been for a heavy down-pour of rain the fire would have been harder to handle. As it was the loss on goods, in adjoining buildings damaged by water, was heavy.

GRADED SCHOOL IS ABOLISHED

Was Established at Whitesville One Year Ago.

Election Declared Void Because
The Location of the Site
Not Given.

The graded school established at Whitesville about a year ago, stands abolished by order of the Daviess circuit court because of irregularities in its establishment. The order was entered Saturday in the action of R. E. Knox and others against Oat Neal and others and resulted from the overruling of a demurrer by the defendant to the plaintiffs' petition says the Owensboro Messenger.

On petition of a large number of residents of Whitesville and surrounding country, County Judge Owen called an election last August to determine whether or not a graded school should be established out of the Whitesville district and portions of several other districts adjoining. A majority of the white voters included in the territory voted in favor of the proposition, and the school was established, and the trustees authorized to levy a tax not exceeding fifty cents on each $100 worth of property and a poll tax of $1.50 on each white male citizen twenty-one years old or over.

Under this order of the court, the graded school was established and opened in September, with Prof. B. C. Gibson as principal. When the time came for collection of the tax levy for the maintenance of the school, certain taxpayers resisted payment, and filed a suit asking that the trustees be enjoined from collecting the tax, and that the order establishing the school be declared null and void.

Judge Birkhead, in deciding the case, did not deliver a written opinion, but, in general upheld the averments of the petition. The principal grounds on which the establishment of the graded school is declared void is that in the petition to the county court and in all later documents relating to the matter the exact site of the schoolhouse was not set out, and that portions of one school district were included in the boundary of the graded school district without the consent of the school district thus dismembered. Various other irregularities are set out in the petition but these are the most important.

No Strike of western Kentucky Miners.

Central City, Ky., June 30.—Operators here deny a report sent out from Leitchfield to-day that a strike is threatened by the miners of Western Kentucky. They say that the recent contract is holding properly, and that the men are working along peaceably and quietly. They deny that a secret meeting was set for to-day or tomorrow or any time at Leitchfield.

"There was a regular meeting set for Louisville today for the election of officers and other business," said a prominent operator here to-night. "We found that the Bowling Green convention would, however, conflict, and we set it up a week or ten days for Louisville."

Indications are that I. P. Barnard will be re-elected President of the Operators.

Death of Doctor Heavrin.

Dr. J. P. Heavrin, one of the most prominent physicians of Owensboro of kidney and heart trouble at 3:45 o'clock Monday afternoon. Although Dr. Heavrin had been in ill health for a few weeks, he was not thought to be dangerously ill, and his death came as a shock to his numerous friends.

Dr. Heavrin made a call to see a patient before noon and attended to office work in the afternoon. At 2 o'clock he was seized with a convulsion. Dr. J. J. Rodman was called in attendance and remained with him until he expired.

Dr. Heavrin was born in Anderson county on November 24, 1849, and was a son of Dr. and Mrs. James H. Heavrin, natives of the same county. He was educated at Rochester, Ky., Cramwell, Ky., and Morehead seminary, Butler county, Ky. He studied medicine with Dr. J. N. Rains, of Rossine, Ky., eighteen months. He took the first course of the Kentucky School of Medicine at Louisville, in 1878-79, and then located at Curds-vills, Daviess county where he practiced until 1888, with the exception of one term spent in school in 1882, when he graduated. He was married in 1875 to Miss Sarah E. Reynolds. In 1888 Dr. Heavrin moved to Hawesville, where he practiced for a short time. He came to Owensboro eighteen years ago and practiced in this city until his death.

Besides his wife, one daughter survives him, Mrs. Goodloe Morrison. Also one brother, Dr. John Heavrin, of Hevesville; and four sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Coats, Mrs. Zella Railey, Misses Sarah and Georgia Heavrin, all of whom reside in this county.

FOR THE BUSY READER

The prohibition element of the Democratic party will make an effort before the Resolutions Committee at the Denver Convention to get a prohibition plank in the platform. Gen. James Weaver, of Iowa, will lead the fight.

Representative Theodore A. Burton, of Cleveland, after a conference with Secretary Taft announced that Arthur I. Vorys would be connected with the Campaign Committee in an important capacity, but would not be the chairman.

After changing his mind three times Justice Mills at last decided to remand Harry Thaw, to the Poughkeepsie jail until Monday July 13. On that date arguments will be heard on the advisability of granting a jury trial to determine Thaw's sanity.

Harry K. Thaw is back in the Poughkeepsie jail, Judge Mills heard argument at White Plains in habeas corpus proceedings and expressed an opinion that the noted prisoner was entitled to a jury trial, but he was not prepared to say whether it should be now or later. New arguments will be presented to Judge Mills on July 13.

A rather mysterious conflagration occurred at Henderson Saturday night at 11 o'clock when the stables in the northeast corner of fair ground were destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is unknown but there are good reasons to believe that somebody set the building on fire. While the stable was burning, a small fire was found in the old floral hall and extinguished.

Acting on Mexico's request that the United States endeavor to prevent violations of the neutrality laws, President Roosevelt directed Secretary Taft to have United States troops sent to the Texas border. The Mexican Government maintains that the uprising has not reached the dignity of a revolution and that offenders will be prosecuted merely as common criminals.

Though candidates for second place on the Democratic ticket are turning upon every side, it is believed that if he will consent to accept it, Judge George Gray, of Delaware, can be named with little opposition. Judge Gray's manager, however, insists that his man is in the race for first place to stay and will not think of the vice presidency until after the President is nominated.

Honor to Memory of G. B. Smith.

The unveiling at Union Grove by the W. O. W. was a great success in every respect. The uniform rank of Green River Camp of Owensboro "put on" the ritualistic work and much credit is due them for the beautiful and impressive manner in which the ceremony was performed. They were gentlemenly fellows, and left a good impression on the 1,500 people who witnessed the ceremony. Come again boys we will leave the latch string on the outside. The boys of Hartford camp were on the ground and did their full share to make the day pass pleasantly for the immense crowd.

Beaver Dam and McHenry camps were also represented and took a part in the services.

A bountiful dinner was served and every one seemed to enjoy themselves to their hearts content the members of the church and the people of the immediate vicinity did all they could to make it pleasant for the people. Many thanks good people. Take it all in all it was a great day for the W. O. W. in this part of the country.

A WOODMAN.

SUMMARY OF PLATFORM ON WHICH REPUBLICANS ASK INDORSEMENT.

The American farmer's welfare is as important as that of wage-earners or capitalist. The Republican party in the past twelve years has aided the farmer in agriculture and in bringing to him the conveniences of rural life. Free rural mail delivery now reaches millions of our citizens and we favor its extension until every community in the land receives the full benefits of the postal service.

We recognized the social and economic advantages of good country roads maintained more and more largely at public expense and less and less at the expense of the abutting owners. In this work we commend the growing practice of state aid.

Nothing so clearly demonstrates the sound basis on which our commercial, industrial and agricultural interests are founded, and the necessity of promoting the present continued welfare through the operation of Republican policies, as the recent safe passage of the American people through a financial disturbance which if appearing in the midst of Democratic rule or the menace of it might have equalled the familiar Democratic panic of the past. We congratulate the people and hail with confidence the signs now manifest of a complete restoration of business prosperity in all lines of trade, commerce and manufacture.

The Republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust law over Democratic opposition, and enforced it after Democratic dereliction. But experience has shown that its effectiveness can be strengthened and its real objects better attained by such amendments as will give to the federal government greater supervision and control over, and secure greater publicity in the management of that class of corporations engaged in interstate commerce having power and opportunity to effect monopolies.

The Republican party declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff by a special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the next president.

In all tariff legislation the true principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries.

We favor the establishment of maximum and minimum rates, the maximum to be available to meet discriminations by foreign countries against American goods entering their markets, and the minimum to represent the normal measure of protection at home.

Another Republican party which must be ever maintained is that of generous provision for those who have fought the country's battles and for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen.

The Republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, state and federal. We believe however that the rule of procedure in the federal courts with respect to the issuance of the writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by statute and that no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted.

The Republican party pledges its continued devotion to every cause that makes for safety and the betterment of conditions among railroad employees.

The Republican party recognizes the special needs of wage-workers generally, for their well-being means the well-being of all.

In the interest of the great mineral industries of our country, we earnestly favor the establishment of a bureau of mines and mining.

We approve the enactment of the railroad rate law and the vigorous enforcement of the statutes against rebates and discriminations.

We believe, however, that the interstate commerce law should be further amended so as to give railroads the right to make and public traffic agreements subject to the approval of the commission, but maintaining always the principle of competition between naturally competing lines and avoiding the common control of such lines by any means whatever.

We favor such legislation and supervision as will prevent the future overuse of stock and bonds by interstate carriers.

We adhere to the Republican doctrine of encouragement to American shipping and urge such legislation as will revive the merchant marine prestige of the country.

The many wise and progressive measures adopted at the recent session of congress have demonstrated the patriotic resolve of Republican leadership in the legislative department to keep step in the forward march to better government. Notwithstanding the indefensible filibustering of a Democratic minority in the house of representatives during the last session, many wholesome and progressive laws were enacted.

We favor the establishment of a postal savings bank system for the convenience of the people and the encouragement of thrift.

The Republican party is committed to the development of a permanent currency system, responding to our greater needs, and the appointment of the national monetary commission by the present congress, which will impartially investigate all proposed methods, insures the early realization of this purpose.

The Republican party has been for more than fifty years the consistent friend of the American negro.

We declare once more, and without reservation, for the enforcement, in letter and spirit of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution, which were designed for the protection and advancement of the negro, and we condemn all devices that have for their real aim his disfranchisement for reason of color alone, as unfair, un-American and repugnant to the supreme law of the land.

We call the attention of the American people to the fact that none of the great measures here advocated by the Republican party could be enacted and none of the steps here proposed could be taken under a Democratic administration or under one in which party responsibility is divided. The continuance of present policies, therefore, absolutely requires the continuance in power of that party which believes in them and which possesses the capacity to put them into operation.

A SPLENDID VARIETY OF SMOKELESS COAL.

Eastern Capitalists Will Help
Develop Utah Field of the High-grade Product.

Forty-five acres of semi-anthracite coal lands in Washington and Iron counties, Utah, are being opened. The product is practically smokeless, has $5 per ton fixed carbon and is superior to Harlow coal of Pennsylvania now so much sought for marine use. The tract is under the control of the Harmony Anthracite Coal Company of Utah. It is capitalized at $1,000,000. Many Eastern capitalists are interested.

The mines get their names from proximity to old Fort Harmony, one of the pioneer fortifications of Southern Utah. Six workable veins have already been opened up, ranging in width from three feet eight inches to nine feet six inches, and making a total of over 34 feet, with a total estimated tonnage fairly in sight of between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 tons as computed by experts upon whose reports the deal has finally been closed. When the branch is completed the company will be in position to produce 1,000 tons a day and has secured favorable rates to San Francisco and San Pedro, in anticipation of being called upon to supply a portion of the government's needs for marine purposes. Inquiries as to the availability of the product have already been received from Washington.

Farm Resources.

In a few weeks the country will be in the midst of a political meltem storm. Arguments of every kind will be employed to persuade the voters to favor either the one or the two great political parties. The organs of gigantic corporations will thunder against what they will describe as rash and reckless policies, which if indorsed at the polls, will militate against the interest for which these organs champion. On the other hand organized labor, through its representatives will denounce in vigorous language the wrong of which it is a victim and will demand that they be righted. Employers will claim attention to their views of the labor question. Protectionists and protectionists will ask a hearing for the policies they champion.

Admitted all this political din there is one class who will scarcely be heard from. And yet they have more to do with creating the real wealth of the country than all the other elements of our population of eighty odd millions. These comparatively silent but effective workers who are seldom heard from and whose interests do not occupy a foremost place in the consideration of politicians, are the farmers of the country. The fruits of their labor this year may be estimated by the figures embodied in the official report of the probable yield of cereals for 1908 which has just been issued from Washington. Here are the number of bushels of the different cereals: Corn, 1,269,000,000 spring wheat 160,000,000; winter wheat, 369,400,000; barley 307,000,000; rye, 20,000,000.

These figures of themselves carry no idea of what they represent. Take for instance, the corn crop. To get it to market would require 1,639,126 freight cars, manned by an army of 807,600 trainmen whose wages for one day would amount to $1,122,500. Remember the figure deal with only the corn crop. It is estimated that the value of the entire farm products for 1908 will be $8,000,000,000. Owing to the limitations of the human mind there is no man living who would be able to form an adequate conception of eight billion dollars, if you would state the figures by themselves.

The New York World, in referring to the greatest crops ever produced in the United States, states certain facts which will help us to realize how much the farmers have added to the wealth of the country by their arduous labors during the last twelve months: "Eight billion dollars," it says, "would pay the net interest bearing debt nine times over. Or it would pay the net national debt and leave enough to buy at par the stock of the railroads of the country."

It would nearly pay off the entire bonded debt of every American railroad. At assessed valuations it would buy out every acre of land in New York City and replace every building in it with a little remnant over equalling the assessed valuation of Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis, Seattle and San Francisco.

We have here a statement which will enable us to appreciate the part our farmers enact in developing the nation's resources. In the last analysis the prosperity of the country depends upon them. And yet representing as they do interests of such transcendent importance to the nation, they are not represented in Congress and the State Legislatures by men who from practical experience, know what is for the best interests of the real creditor of the nation's wealth—the Irish World.

Wrecking Windmills.

The passing of the windmill in England, antiquated by such recent power producers as the gas engine and electric motor, has given life to a new industry—windmill wrecking. The old windmill builders understood their business and meant their handiwork to last, and so the demolishing of such structures is no simple task. Many of the old mills stood 100 feet high and had eight or nine floors, fitted with four run-of-stones, and contained tons upon tons of brick. Often these huge mills stand close to other buildings and says Popular Mechanics, accidents would be inevitable if the wreckers did not have experience in their tasks.

CLEANLINESS OF THE REFRIGERATOR.

Some Rules for Getting Sanitary Refrigeration Out Of It.

To properly clean the refrigerator, remove the shelves from all the closets and stand them in the sink or in a tub; now prepare some tepid water containing ammonia or chlorides, and sponge off the entire inside not forgetting the ledge underneath the ice receptacle which catches the drip and leads the water to the pipe, which can only be reached when the shelf is removed. After sponging off the entire interior, including the ceilings of the various closets the side, the ledges where shelves rest, etc. (using a wooden skewer if there are any grooves or corners,) prepare some clear, cold water, and also some boiling water containing chlorides. With a long wire brush, which comes for the purpose, and which may be purchased for 5 cents, clean the drain pipe, flushing it with the water containing the chlorides.

In place of the chlorides many housewives prefer to use washing soda in this water, since it unites with any grease that gathers on the sides of the pipe and forms soap which cleans the pipe effectually; however, a drain pipe must be neglected for a matter of weeks, or else ice must be particularly filthy before the dirt in the ice forms on the inside of the pipe and lines it with a slime that only the soda and thorough brushing will remove; if attended to every week, the chlorides will suffice to free the pipe from all impurities.

If there is a drain pipe underneath the ice box, where the waste water escapes, do not neglect this, but pour more of the hot soda solution down it; after a few moments pour the cold water over every part of the lining of the refrigerator, wipe it with a clean, perfectly dry cloth, and let it remain open to air; the clear cold water rinses the ice box and also assists in lowering the temperature after the boiling water has heated the refrigerator; never scrub the ice box with boiling hot suds for unless it has been woefully neglected it will not be necessary. It lowered the temperature which is harmful to the refrigerator and undoubtedly causes odors to arise and a steam to gather, which settles on the food to its detriment. Wash the shelves scald then rinse in very cold water; wipe dry and place in the sun and air for a short time; they may then be returned to place and the ice box is clean. It is easily kept by looking over the contents very morning turning up what is left from the day before or throwing away anything that is not to be used; wiping off the shelves at once if anything is spilled on them. Last of all, keep the atmosphere sweet and discourage all forms of vermin by placing a lump of charcoal in each compartment.

When anything is spilled it should be washed up immediately in any case for to fumes which contaminate the rest of the food and injure the lining.

The Holland Dikes.

The attention which being directed to our large swamp areas and the possibility of their reclamation leads interest to the gigantic cost by which land has been reclaimed to fertility in Holland. It is with the Dutch a question of eternal warfare against water encroachment.

Some of the greatest dikes are at Heider and Walcheren and are monumental. Sand-dunes planted with certain grasses protect most of the coast. Interior embankments are nearly as extensive as the dikes. On these embankments are built (not dug) the main canals crossing above the secondary canals and ditches all forming a complete system of communication.

Such water as may be drained out between tide is handled through sluices and what remains is raised by windmills, working scoop wheels on the Archimedian screw. The reclaimed fields are called polders and are circled with these windmills, peculiar to the country. A town of 9,000 population will have 400 windmills.

In America most of the reclaimable swamps once drained, would require but slight maintenance work—no more than upon any farm where ditches are kept open to carry off excessive rainfall.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and accous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. A Broken Engagement.

The writer knows a man, a lonely old bachelor of 60 who is unmarried simply because the girl of his choice thirty years ago couldn't please all of his relatives. She was a very sweet girl, with pretty manners, but his mother said she was too delicate to be a real helpmeet; that he ought to marry rosy-cheeked Mary Jones, who could sew and make elegant desserts and work all day, and then not feel too fatigued to dance all night.

And his sisters found fault with his fiancée because she read Browning and Tennyson when she might have been embroidering undersleeves; while his aunts declared that they didn't see how such a splendid young fellow could throw himself away on a pale slip of a girl, when there were handsome maidens to be had for the asking.

After several months of argument of this sort, the splendid-looking young fellow began to show that he thought he was sacrificing himself and the slip of a girl, who had as much spirit as though she weighed 200 pounds, released him tearfully from his troth.

A few years afterward she married a man without feminine relatives and now she's accounted one of the handsomest matrons in her native town, and when she meets the old bachelor she's very sweet to him and invites him to dinner on high days and holidays so he won't be lonely at his hotel.

Method of Persuasion.

It becomes evident from the following story, which hails from a north country town, that there are widely varying ideas in existence as to what constitutes voluntary testimony on any subject.

"Did I understand you to say that this boy voluntarily confessed his share in the mischief done to the schoolhouse?" asked the magistrate addressing the determined-looking female parent of a small and dirty boy charged with being concerned in a recent raid upon an unpopular school-mate.

"Yes, sir, he did," the woman responded. "I just had to persuade him a little and then he told me the whole thing voluntarily."

"How did you persuade him?" queried his worship.

"Well, first I gave him a good licking," said the firm parent, "and then I put him to bed without supper, and took his clothes away and told him he'd stay in bed till he confessed what he'd done, if 'twas the rest of his days, and I should lick him again in the morning. And in less than half an hour he told me the whole story voluntarily."—Tit-Bits.

SIX BRAVE KENTUCKIANS

Slain By Indians Led By Little Turtle.

Their Graves Near Eaton Ohio Annually Decked With National Flag.

"The muffled drum and roll has been the soldiers' last tattoo. No more on life's parade shall meet that brave and fallen few; On fame's eternal camping ground their silent ranks are spread, And glory guards with solemn rounds the bivouac of the dead."

About one mile west of Eaton, in the edge of a picturesque woodland is a little plot of ground that is of more than ordinary interest. One has but to stand upon it and look back the scroll of history, connecting, as it were, the dim misty past with the present and feel that he is upon sacred ground. It is the resting place of six Kentucky militiamen, who were killed in the battle of Fort St. Clair, November 6, 1792, in a combat with some 250 Mingo and Wyandot Indians, led by the celebrated Chief, Little Turtle.

The graves are on the south side of where the stockade stood. They are just beneath the long, projecting branches of a giant oak—monarch of the forest—so grand old nature stands and holds her outstretched hands as if in silent benediction and like a lone sentinel guards the graves of the fallen heroes.

Over an hundred years have passed since the conflict in the forest but the fallen are not forgotten. Though the war cry of the red man is heard no more; the hunting knife is turned into the pruning knife; the bayonet into the plowshare; and once dense forests are now waving fields of green, yielding abundant harvests to the hands of sturdy toil, the people of this cultured and enlightened land pay tribute to those who left home and loved ones to battle with the Indian for supremacy. Time and the onward march of progress have wrought many changes; our land has been deluged with the blood of its best sons; old glory has unfurled its folds to heaven's gentle breeze in the far-away land of the setting sun, but through it all shines brighter and brighter with each successive generation, the valor and sacrifices of the heroes of pioneer days.

Annually on memorial day a committee is sent to the lonely graves in the woodland and a tiny flag floats from the six mounds, their colors seeming to blend with the foliage of the forest and the blue sky overhead.

On a recent afternoon, the writer in company with Thomas Goode, Wm. Icenour, Hawkins Clear and Ed Needham, journeyed to the site of the old fort for the purpose of erecting a pole and raising a flag. Upon our arrival we found that old nature had aided in the effort to commemorate the place. A few feet from the graves was found a tree some fifty feet in height; the limbs were cut and at its top was placed the colors of our country. The undergrowth was cut, the leaves raked and the little graveyard put on a different appearance.

The soldiers sleep where they fell and neat headstones mark their graves. The stones were placed there by Mr. Glem Gilmore, the owner of the land surrounding the site of the old fort. The names on the markers read as follows: Lieutenant Job Hale, Matthew English, Robert Bowling, Joseph Clontz, Isaac Jett and John Williams. A few yards south of the soldiers' graves are buried two Indians. About 100 Kentuckians were engaged in this battle. The mounted riflemen were commanded by Captain John Adair, of Kentucky, and all were said to be splendid specimens of physical manhood. The Indians made their attack a short time before day-light, keeping behind trees. With the first streaks of dawn, when the sons of the "Dark and Bloody Grounds" could distinguish a white man from an Indian they charged them, using their guns for clubs. The Indians retreated, taking with them all but six head of horses belonging to the troops. The Indians were pursued to where Eaton now stands, when the soldiers returned to the fort to look after the wounded and bury the dead.

In this age of our country's history, with its advanced civilization and living as we are, in a land of plenty, a land upon which the smiles of heaven beam with uncommon refugence—would it not be the proper thing to have this small piece of ground inclosed and converted into a little park? In doing this the place would be more inviting to all who appreciate their country and would know its history. Over in old Kentucky, with its generous people, whether amid its undulating land of blue grass or on its rugged mountains whose tops seem to pierce the clouds and kiss the sky.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicine greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherry-bark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hang-on chronic coughs, bronchitis and nervous troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time. Its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach), it is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing hives, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

There are hearts that will beat in unison with a responsive chord to all who would honor their cherished dead.

This may or may not be done. For over a century those Kentuckians have slept in their silent graves in the forest. The seasons come and go; the winds of winter may stir its sad requiem; but spring may bring forth the birds—God's orchestra—to warble their sweetest notes above their tombs but one thing is instilled into the human heart and that is that when the drum beats of eternity sound, along with others who by their walks and works caused their names to be written in words of living light upon the great white walls of American manhood will line up those who were the vanguards of our civilization—Rambler in Preble County (Ohio) Democrat.

CALEB POWERS MAY WED PENNSYLVANIA GIRL

Is Now at York Visiting Miss Eleanor Bonham, whom He Met While She was at school.

York, Pa., June 26.—Caleb Powers the Kentuckian recently released from prison, is in this city, visiting Miss Eleanor Bonham, to whom it is rumored he is engaged. Miss Bonham is a member of York's society set and is extremely wealthy.

She met Powers years ago in Kentucky. When he arrived here stopped at the Colonial Hotel where he instructed the attaches to say nothing of his visit. He spends most of his time at Miss Bonham's palatial residence on East Market street. He says he will remain here for several days.

Miss Bonham is the daughter of Mrs. R. L. Bonham a member of one of York's oldest families. The young woman has inherited several fortunes. She is comely in appearance and a well-known horsewoman. When asked in regard to his plans for the future the ex-Secretary of State said:

"My chief interest is now my health. It is my intention to devote the summer to recuperation, of which I am greatly in need. I have planned to enter a sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich., and remain there for rest and treatment until my physical condition improves sufficiently to warrant me in resuming professional activities. If by next September my health is restored to me I shall again take up the practice of law."

TAKING CENSUS OF HOUSE FLIES.

Uncle Sam wants to Know How Many There are.

Are Breeders of Typhoid Fever, And Other Diseases of a Similar Nature.

A census of the house fly is the latest statistical work which the United States government has undertaken. The work is important and will probably have a bearing upon the progress of certain diseases notably typhoid fever, is realized by government officials. In view of this fact, two great departments, treasury and agriculture, are co-operating in the work. The particular branches of these departments that are most interested are the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service of the Treasury Department and the Bureau of Entomology of the Agricultural Department.

It is proposed to count house flies in a number of places, in order to determine what effect their presence or absence has on the spread of typhoid fever. For the present the fly census is being taken only in two cities, Washington and Pittsburgh. Eventually it may be extended all over the country. In the national capital the census is being taken more carefully than in the Smoky City, probably. This is true because the government departments are located here and also because Washington has been noted for years on account of having an annual epidemic of typhoid fever in the late summer and fall.

The census of flies is being taken here with the assistance of fly paper. A quantity of a standard brand of that article has been purchased by the government and sheets are distributed every two days to a number of public buildings, stores and private houses. At the end of forty-eight hours these sheets of fly paper, together with their prisoners, are collected and taken to the Agricultural Department. There the flies on each sheet are counted and the number noted, together with the dates and places the sheets were collected.

As many as 2,000 flies have been caught in this way at a given place during the forty-eight-hour period. The highest record was made by fly paper left at Washington Barrocks, a military post located at the junction of the Potomac and Anacostia rivers, in this city where 2,600 flies were caught in two days.

It is proposed to keep up this count of flies throughout several months. At the end of that time the figures will be elaborated into a chart showing the variation in the numbers of flies caught at different places. This chart will be compared with another chart, upon which the progress of typhoid fever during the same period of time will be indicated. Scientific officials of the government expect that the comparison will show that at the time and place when and where flies were most abundant there are more cases of typhoid fever than at other times and places where flies were not so numerous.

By proving that the "seasonal abundance" of the house fly regulates the spread of typhoid fever, government scientists hope that the public will be impressed with the fact that the common house fly is about as bad a pest and disease spreader as exists on earth, and that public sentiment will be aroused in favor of a campaign of extermination against the pests.

Didn't Know He Wanted That.

Paddy the Pig renowned in song and story expressed a desire for a dog the other day, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. "What sorter dog d'you want?" asked Oyster Tommy, one of the habitués of Paddy's beer store.

Paddy said he wanted a nice bulldog. "What'll you give for one?" asked Oyster Tommy. "I'll come over with a ten-spot," Tommy said the proprietor. "But you ain't got no dog."

"Sure I got a dog," said Tommy. "He's a peach of a bulldog. Regular bulldog color."

Paddy said he'd buy it if it was a good dog. "But mind you, Tommy," said he, "don't you go stealin' no dog. I ain't the sort of a fellow that'll stand for that."

Tommy professed virtuous indignation at the suggestion and went away. Next day he returned with a beautiful dog, blood showing in every line. "I raised 'im from a pup," said Tommy, proudly.

Paddy took out a $10 bill. "But I want a pedigree with 'im Tommy," said he.

Tommy looked disgusted. "Aw, shucks!" said he, "why didn't you say you wanted a pedigree. I'd a stole a pedigree too."

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, O., and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike County, O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spot and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all druggists 50c. and $1.00. LARGE NUMBERS OF FISH CAUGHT BY HAND.

Minnesota Streams so Full of Them as to Be an Annoyance.

The opening of the fishing season in Minnesota has revealed a condition of things almost unparalleled in the annals of this favorite sport, writes the St. Paul correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle. It has been known to fishermen for some time that there was an abundant supply of fish in the lakes and creeks, and that the finest sport could be expected. Since the season opened every train from St. Paul has been crowded with fishermen and from every fishing ground in the state reports are arriving that the fish are running through the creeks connecting the various lakes in such shoals that at times it is difficult to cross the creeks without stepping on them.

At Fergus Falls, a favorite fishing place the banks of the creeks are lined with spectators who stand and watch the fishermen pick out the largest and best fish with their hands as they swim past. The law permits the spearing of pickerel suckers and a variety known here as red horse. At one point a fisherman took out sixty fish in record time, the largest being a pickerel weighing 26 pounds. Witness describe the fish as swimming so thickly that a boy, armed with a spear for the first time could have no difficulty in taking out a wagon load.

There are 10,000 small lakes in Minnesota and innumerable creeks and since the fisheries have come under protection of the State Fish and Game Commission, the fish have increased in a manner which is phenomenal and an object lesson as to what can be accomplished in this direction. In fact this year the department is advised that the fish are so plentiful as to become a problem, and promise their own extinction. Trout are just as plentiful as the less aristocratic kind, and Minnesota is an angler's paradise. At Deerwood a new fish hatchery is being established for which $6,000 was appropriated last year arrangements have been entered into with the loggers for the security of the different kinds of stream and over 4,000,000 trout fry are distributed annually in different parts of the state.

The Road to Success.

It is said: "Out of twenty clerks in a store, only one will become a partner and finally succeed in the business; that out of twenty hands in a printing office only one will own a newspaper and become an educator of the people; out of twenty apprentices in a shipyard, only one will become a ship builder on his own account, and out of twenty young men on a farm, only one will own a farm of his own. Sometime we look at our young friends and we wonder who the lucky one will be.

Lucky? Why there is no luck about it when we think it over carefully. The thing is as certain as the rule of addition, and the young man who distances his competitors, is he who masters his business, who lives a clean, wholesome life, who devotes his leisure time to the acquisition of knowledge and home study who gains friends by deserving them, and who saves his spare money. Many so-called shortcuts to success have been tried but it has only been attained by the time honored highway of integrity, industry and economy."

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President,
HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT,
of Ohio.

For Vice President,
HON. JAMES S. SHERMAN, of New York.

For Member of Congress Fourth Dist.,
DR. DAVID W. GADDIE, of La Rue County.

It will be a long time before Democracy can boast of another ex-President.

The new Secretary of War, Luke E. Wright, is a Democrat and lives at Memphis Tennessee.

Kentucky Republicans should hold a love feast, put their knives away and get ready for the campaign.

Remember it was a legislature Democratic in both Houses with all Committees officered by Democrats, which defeated the County Unit Law.

Acting Gov. Cox did a humane thing in pardoning the blind and cripples in the penitentiary, but, isn't there danger of an increase of cripple convicts?

"No woman has any excuse whatever for not having a good figure," says a Chicago woman lecturer. No indeed not with a bumper crop of cotton in sight.

Those Methodist Ministers doubtless mean well, but they evidently don't appreciate what they ask, when they petition Gov. Willson to reconvene the legislature.

It was easy for Bryan to criticize the Republican platform telling what it failed to say and what should have been left out, but now he has troubles of his own.

Republicans of McLean County are going to start a paper at Calhoun in the near future. We hope they will succeed. The party needs more country papers in Kentucky.

Attacks on Gov. Willson will not conceal the printing graft, which the Court of Appeals has just confirmed, nor the empty Treasury, handed over by the late Beckham administration.

Indications point to a settlement of the Taft-Foraker differences in Ohio, and the Indiana Republicans are getting together for the greatest fight of their lives. Thus do Democratic hopes go glimmering.

If it is true that Roosevelt has stolen the Democratic platform and is carrying it out, in view of the sudden check in prosperity, hadn't we better get back to old fashioned Republican principles as soon as possible?

Arrising from its two weeks quiet and peaceful slumber on the Republican platform, The Hartford Herald awakes to find that it was not made to suit its notion. It's just too bad. Republicans should have had Hebe write the document.

Any business man who is too partisan to patronize as an advertising medium, the newspaper of an opposite belief to his should not expect and is really not entitled to the patronage of people of opposite political belief. If both cannot be used at the same time, rotation can certainly be practiced.

The Hartford Herald has a way, all its own of fixing people's politics for them. It used to say Grover Cleveland was a Republican. Now, it insists that Theodore Roosevelt is a Democrat. We should think this would cause great confusion in the minds of those of its readers who depend upon its advice as to how they should vote, if there are any such.

In these days of modern daily newspapers, telephones and wireless telegraphy it looks a little silly to send a Committee a month afterward, to notify a man of his nomination for the Presidency. With all the up-to-date methods of disseminating news he is bound to get an inkling of it beforehand and thus the work of the committee is rendered somewhat perfunctory, to say the least of it.

We are to have two years of politics in Ohio county. This year the Presidential election will interest all our readers, while next year county officers are to be chosen. While supporting Republican policies and candidates, this paper expects to deal fairly with all questions, and individuals. It is for fair primaries, an equal chance for all, and the elimination of "boodle" in primaries, and elections.

The leaders of the Republican party are neither mugwumps nor Democrats. They believe thoroughly in a protective Tariff and one that will give adequate protection to all American industries and keep American workmen employed at American prices. That party which believes in turning American order over the foreign countries for the products of cheap labor is not the one for American laborers to support. Whenever they have tried that experiment they have gone without work and have invariably seen starvation staring them in the face.

VINDICATED.

During the Democrat contest between Attorney General Hays and Mr. Hager for the nomination for Governor, eighteen months ago, the charge was made by Mr. Hays in every county in the state that the Sinking Fund Commissioners had misjudged the state out of thousands of dollars in the printing contract through favoritism to the Globe Printing Company, of Louisville and in which John and George Fulton, of Bardstown were interested. This was vehemently denied by Gov. Beckham and the other members, and the relations with Attorney General Hays became so strained that he refused to act with them in warding the contract. The Republicans made use of this charge in the campaign last year, and the Democrats again denied the charge. Now comes the court of Appeals of Kentucky composed of six Democrats and one Republican, and says that in the letting of that contract the state was defrauded out of $23,902.69. In other words the Globe Printing Co. was awarded printing at $27,902.69 which should have been done for $4,000, and judgment is given for $23,902.69 which represents the difference, with interest from 1902. It seems impossible that these gentlemen could have made such a mistake ignorantly. It must have been rank favoritism with a big "bake off" for some one. At any rate Judge Hays and the Republicans have been vindicated in their contention. Is it any wonder the Treasury is as empty as "mother Hubbard's cupboard?"

WORKED HIS WAY.

The Job an Energetic Student Took to Cross the Atlantic.

Jack had paid his way always. Out of the poverty of his childhood he had fought his way through the university. After graduation he felt he must see Europe, and with the little accumulation he had he "crossed the pond," trusting to good luck to get home again. But, his trip of sightseeing over, he found himself in Liverpool without money and with no means of getting any.

He thought he would just go down to the steamship, go on board and see how it would seem if only he were going home.

As he wandered over the big liner his attention was attracted by a crying baby. The mother was traveling alone, and while she was attempting to see to all the thousand and one details incident to the beginning of an ocean trip the baby had resented the neglect he felt he had received and was crying. The mother was at her wits' end.

Jack's kind heart prompted him to say: "Let me take the baby, madam. Perhaps I can keep him quiet until your preparations are made."

This request, so unusual from a stranger and especially from a man, naturally filled her with surprise, but she looked Jack squarely in the eye for a second and trusted him. "I wish you would," she said.

Jack's care was extremely satisfactory to his babyship, and when, in a half hour, the mother was ready to reclaim her child she found a happy baby cooling and trying to devour a bunch of keys at one gulp.

She laughed as she took the youngster and thanked Jack. Then she added, quite in fun, "I wish you were going clear across."

Jack saw his opportunity. He said: "Madam, I'm a college student, out of funds and longing for home. If you will pay my passage to America I will take care of your baby all the way across."

His proposition was accepted, and he kept his word. He is a prominent lawyer now, and he looks back with considerable amusement to his experience in getting home from Europe.—Youth's Companion.

MURDER OF THE SEAL.

The Way the Animals Are Slaughtered by the Hunters.

The ice echoes no footfalls, so the murder of the seal is a stealthy act. Yes, it seems like murder. On the pan lies a whitecoat alone. Up to it hurries one of the hunters. Lifting his bat above his head, he measures the distance; then, swinging downward the iron shod point, he strikes the skull of the seal such a blow that it is crushed in as if of pasteboard. Tossing aside the bat and whipping out the scalping knife, while the creature is still quivering, with a swift undercut and two or three side strokes the keen blade has severed the hide and the layers of fat beneath so they can be rolled into a pelt, the hide holding the fat in its folds. The next whitecoat is with its parents. Their hide is coarser, but worth having, so the hunter takes a quick aim, lodging a charge of shot in the head of the growling mate just at the base of the brain. Here the skull is thinnest. One of the hunters stands guard over the blowhole to prevent the mother from escaping, while another bats the cub. Then the female, who would desert her offspring to save her own life, is clubbed on the head. A few strokes of the knives and three more bloody carcasses crimson the ice. The pelt of the first seal is piled with the other three in a pan. The flapper sticks a flag by its side, and the hunters hurry forward, leaving the pelts to be towed back to the ship when the hunt is ended.

Thus the slaughter continues hour after hour until nightfall only ends the stroke of the bat and thrust of the knife. If it began at daybreak the field may be strewn with thousands of dead seals, for if the pan of ice is thronged with them, as is sometimes the case, a hundred men will kill ten times their number in a day, since most of the seals are harps, which seldom try to protect their young, and are slain without attempting to defend themselves.—Day Allen Willey in Metropolitan.

Bunions and Rank.

"It is extraordinary," writes Sir Henry Drummond Wolff in "Rambling Recollections," "to observe in England the weakness that most people have for boasting of their friends in high places and the deference that they show to them. The daughter of a lady of very high rank had some pain in her foot which the mother asked the governess to be good enough to look at. The latter after examining it said, 'If it were not for her ladyship's exalted rank I should say it was a bunion.'"

Sign of Precocity.

"I believe," declared the Irishman, "that the youngest son's born to be a surgeon."

"Phwat leads ye t' say that?" asked his friend.

Joy.

Joy in life is like the oil in the lamp, when the oil commences to fail, the wick burns with a glimmering red flame, filling the air about it with a black smoke. Life also without a little joy burns unprofitably, filling the air with depression and sadness.

The hawk eats the dove, but the hawk seems to be surrounded by as many dangers as the dove.—Atchison Globe.

The Stars and Stripes.

The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new States the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned up on our fathers and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of Congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new State into the Union, one star be added to the Union of the flag; and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next, succeeding such admission." Since 1818, twenty-five stars of sovereign States have been added to the Union making forty-six in all.

Since the struggle of 1861-1865 the flag has become to Americans dearer than ever. It has been carried to the utmost parts of the earth, carrying liberty wherever it has been thrown to the breeze. Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism in the breast, when we contrast the meaning, in far distant lands of ours and other flags displayed together.

The stars and stripes, within the recent past, have come to possess new beauty for friendly eyes and new terror for the foes of Liberty.

Artificial Honey.

Artificial honey can now be made so like the genuine article in flavor that even the experts can not tell the difference. Thick syrup of sugar is boiled with a minute quantity of mineral acid, which converts it into the same form occurring in honey. This is mixed with some natural honey of strong flavor, and thus closely simulates the real article. It is said that the following known as Ley's reagent will detect the spurious honey: Ten parts of silver nitrate are dissolved in a hundred parts of water, and to this twenty parts of a 15 per cent solution of soda carbonate is added. The precipitate is filtered, washed and dissolved in a 115 parts of a 10 per cent solution of ammonium chloride. It must be kept in the dark in a well-stoppered bottle. The honey to be tested must be diluted with twice its weight of water. A few drops of the reagent are to be added and heated for five minutes on a water bath in the dark. National honey turns brown and shows a greenish-yellow fluorescence; the imitation turns a lighter tint and shows no fluorescence.

His Peculiar Bath.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald says that a remark attributed to the late Sully Roddhouse was made originally by the famous and eccentric literary and dramatic critic, Gustave Planche, who died in Paris in September, 1857. For a long time it was thought that he slept in the public streets, and he himself took pleasure in giving credit to this report.

"Where are you lodging?" some one asked him.

"I don't lodge," he replied, "I perch."

"And Where?"

"Champs Elysees, third tree to the right!"

Another anecdote of Planche is that being once invited to dine with a celebrated actress, Anais or Mme. Dorval, he arrived before the company "My goodness, Planche," cried the hostess, "what a figure you cut! Go, take a bath, I beg; here is a ticket."

He returned in an hour's time as clean as when he set out. "You unhappy man, you have not taken the bath!"

"By my faith I have!"

"Look at your hands!"

"Ah, that is because I had a book while in the water."

GROVER CLEVELAND DIED POOR MAN.

Income Said to Have Been $10,000
A Year---Worried Over Condition.

There are conflicting stories here as to what Mr. Cleveland left to his family. Some say that they are amply provided for and others that he left but little if anything. Among the latter is the Washington Star, which says to-day:

"Contrary to the general belief, Mr. Cleveland was a poor man. For some reason which does not appear, the opinion was generally held that he was possessed of a considerable estate, and that he would leave his family well off when he died. Inquiries made yesterday developed the fact that Mr. Cleveland far from being well off, was poor and left to his family, unless his close personal friends are entirely mistaken, practically nothing but the house at Princeton and the place at Buzzard's Bay."

"When Mr. Cleveland left the White House the last time, and for many years thereafter," said one of his intimates yesterday, "he had, together with his wife, about $10,000 a year."

His income often worried his exceedingly especially as he saw his family growing up about him and knew their future was not as well provided for as he could wish. He would not accept anything from his friends. He was extremely proud on that score, but those who knew him best knew that his circumstances worried him not a little.

"He did not live in New York for the sole reason that he could not live there as cheaply as he could in New Jersey and maintain the style he felt would be demanded of him. When he became one of the trustees of the Equitable Life his income was added to somewhat. I think he obtained something like $5,000 for that work. He was the only member of the board of three who was paid but, unlike the others he gave nearly his entire time to work of the insurance company."

"Had he lived a little longer his circumstances would have been much improved. All his friends rejoiced when he became the head of the association of Life Insurance Presidents with a salary of $25,000 a year, for they knew his circumstances. However he held that place only a year, so that although there had been an improvement, it was not sufficient to make a great deal of difference."

"I know a great deal about Mr. Cleveland's affairs, and my belief is it will be found that he left little if anything to his family outside of the house at Princeton and the furnishings in it and the place at Buzzard's Bay. He had some little money in addition but I don't believe it was very much. My recollection is that it was on deposition the Kennerly or Trust Company. That fact came out at the time the company closed its doors."

Important Question of Forest Law in Maine.

In holding that the legislature has a constitutional right to pass laws regulating the cutting of timber on private lands, if the cutting is liable to be detrimental to the public welfare, the judges of the Maine Supreme Court handed down an opinion of great importance to the owners of forest land in that state, and of interest to land owners in all parts of the country.

The opinion refers particularly to the cutting of small timber which should be left growing to give a forest cover prevent or diminished soil erosion and consequent filling up of the rivers and lakes. The judges specifically state that regulations of that kind cannot be constructed as the taking of private property for public use, and that the state needs not pay for young growth which it may forbid the owner to cut.

This was not a court decision, for no case was before the court for review, but was a formal opinion prepared at the request of the senator for the guidance of the legislature in the enactment of laws to regulate forests and protect the interests of the public. Similar questions have come up in other states and may be expected to come up in the future.

In the proposition which the Maine senate submitted to the judges for their opinion it was stipulated that a law should not be enacted which would interfere with clearing land for agricultural mining or manufacturing purposes, or for building sites or pleasure grounds. The purpose is to forbid the total stripping of forest land where a forest cover is necessary to prevent the wash of the soil the lessening of food ravages, and the mitigation of drought, and where the public good requires that such cover be preserved.

In submitting their opinion the judges cited numerous examples of legislation restraining property holders from using their property in such a way as to endanger the public welfare.

A man may not erect a dangerous building on his lot because it would imperil or damage the property of others. For the same reason, a forest owner may be restrained from denuding his hillside to such a degree as to send down upon the lands of his neighbor the soil wash to cover their meadows, choke their streams, and injure them in their rightful use and enjoyment of property. It was declared that there is nothing in the constitution of the United States or in that of the state of Maine prohibiting the enforcement of a forest law of that kind.

Maine's greatest wealth is in its forests directly or indirectly. In several ways it has been a pioneer in forest legislation and management. It is one of the few states—probably the only state—whose forests are nearly holding their own. Lumbering has gone on there for a long time, and every year there is something ready to cut. The folly of stripping land and leaving it defenseless against erosion is well understood in Maine, and the legislature has taken the preliminary steps toward a law to compel unwilling forest land owners to leave enough small timber and brush on the ground to cover it.

DUCK RAISING IS PROFITABLE.

Long Island Is Famous As The Home of Delicious
Fowl.

The raising of the duck which has made Long Island famous among epicures and gourmets of the metropolis has become one of the most important industries of Suffolk County. In the region of Eastport, Speonk, Quogue and West Hampton a large part of the population is interested directly or indirectly in the business of breeding and growing for market this web-footed anatinebird. It provides work for many men—and women, too—and means trade for the shopkeepers in the different villages.

The duck-raising industry has grown to great proportions on Long Island in the last decade. Some of the greatest duck farms in the world are now to be found around Eastport and Good Ground. The first man who went in for raising a toothsome breed of duck for the New York hotels and restaurants had such success that many others followed him into the business and now great numbers of the edible fowls are shipped daily to the city market. So extensive and important has this industry become that the Long Island duck raisers have organized themselves into a sort of trust to protect their own interest and prevent unscrupulous growers from injuring the reputation of the Speonk bird by palming off as such on buyers spurious breeds of duck.

Many of the Suffolk raisers have amassed comfortable fortunes in the business and some have grown even wealthier. Their farms are equipped with every convenience and are conducted along model lines as to sanitation and hygienic arrangements. Much of the duck raising is done on lands where that enjoyment so dear to the duck heart swimming, may be freely indulged in by the fowl. On some of the farms there are fresh-water streams and ponds in which the water is ever running and changing. Others are on the banks of salt-water creeks, which reach in from Moriches and Shinnecock bays. While the chief profits is of course in the part of the bird which goes to the table, the money realized from the sale of certain by-products such as fine feathers, is considerable.—New York Times.

It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of this specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. We will also send one nickel plated brass hand pump. Tires to be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES don't buy any kind at any price until you send for a pair of the special introductory price quoted above, or write for our big Tire and Sundry Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the usual prices.

DO NOT WAIT or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

ket. This will provide a good thing for February and have never been so popular. They trace their ancestry back to William the Conqueror's family at the battle of Hastings.

The orange and lemon crops of Southern California have this year broken all records and though the average price has been lower than ever before the total receipts will be larger than ever.

The Franklin Cattle Company of which E. H. Harriman is director has sold its herd of 80,000 in Southern Dakota and will go out of business.

The rapid settling of the range by homesteaders is given as the reason for going out of the business.
